"Way Down East," one of the best known of rural dramas, pleased a large audience of playgoers in the opera house last evening. The leading roles were acted with careful discretion on the part of several superior performers and the piece as a whole gained much merited applause. The company left this morning for Burlington for matinee and evening performances at The Strong theatre.

Coach E. L. Kibby, who brings a husky team from the state agricultural school at Randolph to play the Springfield football team at Lincoln campus this afternoon, will be remembered by many as a one-time star backstop at the University of Vermont. In his day, Coach Kibby was one of the best catchers among the eastern colleges. He has had 7 of the state "Aggies" all season. Principal G. L. Green will also accompany the team.

The Goddard seminary football team, numbering 15, left this morning for St. Johnsbury, where they will play the St. Johnsbury academy football team this afternoon. Work on the state road project which Street Superintendent J. C. DeBruin started three weeks ago, will be completed this evening. Lately it is disapproved that the approved work of the city and state would allow the work to proceed through to the city line near the city farm on the East Montpelier road. This year's strip begins at the easterly end of Brook street and joins Merchant street just south of Hope cemetery. Heavy travel has already put sections of the new road into excellent condition.

Thirteen members of the "Way Down East" theatrical company registered at The Buzzell hotel yesterday. V. F. Cronch, the advance man of the "Master Mind" theatrical company, which is booked to appear at the opera house on Monday, Nov. 3, was also registered at The Buzzell. Among the others were: W. S. Several almanacs for 1914 have been issued and there are forecasts for no less than four eclipses during the coming year. The first of these, an eclipse of the sun, February 24 and 25, is not visible except in the regions around the south pole, and the fourth, a partial eclipse of the moon September 4, will be visible in this country only in the western part. A partial eclipse of the moon will be visible the evening of March 2 and a total eclipse of the sun August 21 will be visible as a small partial eclipse. There will be a transit of Mercury across the face of the sun November 7, the sun rising that day with the planet on its disk.

While the party was in progress, Mr. and Mrs. Smith were showered with a number of appropriate reminders of the occasion. Music and games were the order of the evening and an excellent time was enjoyed by all. One of the pleasing features of the affair was the violin and piano music rendered by Messrs. Holden of Plainfield.

A carload of Barre granite was dumped over the north end of the Montpelier & Wells River freight yards on Depot square last night and not until a wrecking crew arrived on the scene this morning was the car returned to the rails. The mishap occurred when one of the big yard engines was shunting a string of cars just before quitting time. In some manner one of the heaviest of the laden cars became detached from the train and because of insufficient bumper protection one half of it left the iron and slid over the bank. The other end was tilted in the air on an angle of 60 degrees when the railroad men started work this morning. No one was injured. With the aid of a heavy crane little difficulty was anticipated in righting the car.

Glenn Merrill of Weymouth, who was a graduate from Goddard seminary in the class of 1913, leaves late this afternoon for Boston, where he will be employed in the electrical plant of J. L. Gleason & Co. Mr. Merrill will enter a training school for young electricians which the company conducts in connection with its manufacturing plant. Mr. Merrill will be accompanied to Boston by Charles Ford of Merchant street, also a recent graduate of Goddard seminary, who to-day completed a long period of service in the Boston Bargain store. Mr. Ford has secured an excellent position with the Mead-Morrison Co., in Cambridge, of which John M. Morrison, formerly of Barre, is one of the heavy stockholders.

SPORTING NOTES.

The English champion golfers, Ray and Vardon, are now returning on the Pacific coast. They still continue to win. The last place they played at was San Francisco.

Brown, the big Navy guard, who was picked last fall for an All-American position, is out of the game with an injured ankle. He is expected to be groomed into shape for the Army game though.

Yale has but five men enrolled at the college, who have won letters in two sports. They are Cornell, Cornish, Pumperly, Talbot and Wheeler.

Jimmy Craig, the star Western athlete, is once more in football togs and preparing for a place on the Michigan eleven. Craig's absence has been sorely felt all season, especially in the Michigan Aggies game last Saturday.

According to verbal statement of a local party, George V. Brown, the prominent B. A. A. man, places Larry Whitney of Dartmouth higher in his estimation as a football player than Charles Brickley of Harvard. The only points by which Brickley's playing overshadows that of the Olympic athlete is in kicking. He thinks that Whitney strikes a line harder and is more difficult to tackle than the Crimson star, and also asserts that there is almost no comparison to them on the defense, Whitney having a great advantage. Whitney is a far better punter than the former Everett high star.

The Frank McWhorter Co.

Consolidated Lighting Company Announces a Complimentary Address.

"In accordance with the policy of Tenney service, the Consolidated Lighting company has retained the services of the most widely known expert in matters of lighting. The gentleman in question Fr. Laurent Godinez, is recognized by those most competent to judge the effect of lighting, as the foremost in all that the term art and science of illumination applies. By his attitude regarding lighting, Mr. Godinez has become a unique figure in the embryo surrounding the manufacturer, distributor and consumer of gas or electric energy in the luminous form of light. Mr. Godinez has much to say about ways and means of utilizing light which are of benefit to the consumer, in that he is enabled through their use to actually trace some cash returns to the customer through lighting which was so attractive and different, in that it attracted attention, and was productive of advertising value. Mr. Godinez maintains that the engineer has been too narrowly educated to even comprehend the possibilities of lighting, which require natural aesthetic tendencies, and a broad education. The illuminating engineer or lamp and reflector salesman, has directed attention to the things which to the engineer seem of the most importance, intensity, and uniformity of lighting. They have neglected to consider the more vital consideration of "effect" and "appearance," and what to the merchant is of paramount importance "attraction," i. e., does the lighting attract attention? Is it different from the commonplace? In other words, the illuminating engineer is obliged to recommend the globes and shades which he is selling, as a salesman, even if they are undesirable. There is no good reason why every store should be lighted exactly like every other store, except that, people have unthinkingly allowed themselves to be led into a rut, from which they must emerge if they desire any of the wonderful advantages which attractive lighting can bestow. Just how this can be done will be revealed by Mr. Godinez in his lecture at Howland hall on next Thursday, Oct. 30. He has no lamps or globes to sell, and none to recommend. He tells the cold facts about lighting. Plain, hard truths which have offended more than one manufacturer who had at heart his own, rather than the public welfare. He shows how wonderful lighting effects can be obtained from ordinary material which everyone has on hand. The lighting of the display window and shop can be transformed and made of the greatest attraction, by following the suggestions which Mr. Godinez will give. He will speak of lighting the home and how different lights make the face appear old or young, as the case may be. The danger of too bright lights on the eyes and how to make glaring lights subdued and restful to tired eyes is shown by forceful experiment. Mr. Godinez does not carry carefully prepared apparatus to give color to his experiments, but uses extemporaneous equipment which is familiar to all and can be duplicated by anyone who desires to carry out the valuable suggestions in their own home, office or display window. Barre people who have met Mr. Godinez are enthusiastic over what his coming will mean to them, and are all to attend with their families. This affair must not be confused with the "demonstration" of the lamp or reflector salesman. Mr. Godinez is not affiliated with manufacturers, being an independent factor in the lighting field. He is the only authority on lighting who has been recognized universally by architects and decorators, evidenced by the fact that in the Architectural Record, the monthly publication subscribed to by all leading architects and decorators, there is appearing a series of articles entitled "What Do We Know About Lighting?" which have created a sensation in the architectural profession. Mr. Godinez is not a "professor" or a "theorist" and deals with cold, hard facts, facts which he has determined from thousands of lighting applications which he has made in all parts of this country. It is to be hoped that a large and representative audience will greet Mr. Godinez when he appears before us on Thursday evening at 8. H. A. Phelps, president of the Barre Board of Trade, will introduce the speaker and say a few words regarding the occasion."
